

Rules of Conduct

The ICP Code of Conduct complies with the code of conduct described in AUCA Student Handbook. Below are more specific iterations in order to ensure fairness, equality, academic freedom, and freedom of speech and expression in the classroom.

Students shall respect the opinions of their peers and professors and their right to speak without interruptions or fear of ridicule.

Students shall not discriminate based on race, gender, ethnicity, religion, sexual preferences, disabilities or any other personal features and/or characteristics that define an individual or community.

Students shall not ask for any undeserved preferential treatment from AUCA faculty and staff.

Students shall respect AUCA faculty and staff. Students shall ask for the faculty's and staff's attention outside the classroom only during the times of their appointment or office hours.

Students shall be held accountable for any claims and/or statements they make about AUCA faculty and staff and shall provide all the necessary evidence when requested by relevant AUCA faculty and staff.

Students shall not exert any form of intimidation, blackmail, threats, or any other forms of illegitimate influence on AUCA students, faculty, and staff.

Students shall be on time to classes and all contacts with AUCA faculty and staff and shall leave the class when the class is over unless there is a medical necessity or advance permission from the professor. Your professors reserve the right not to let you into the class if you are late and/or count your late arrival as an unexcused absence.

Students shall attend classes regularly unless there is a good and verifiable reason requiring their absence in class.

Students shall not cause unnecessary distractions and disruptions in class.

Please respect university discipline rules and turn off cell phones during class. Students cannot use any social networks such as Facebook, VK, Twitter, etc., during the classes. If the professor notices such behavior, s/he has the right to ask these students to leave the classroom.

Food and beverages are not permitted in the classroom. Students cannot leave the class to take any food and beverages. In this case, the instructor will accept the student as absent from that class.

During the exams, the use of cell phones, any other electronic devices, and the dictionary is strictly prohibited. If any student attempts to cheat in the exams, the instructor will have the right to give F grade for the entire course. The instructor will ask to punish the student according to the university rules and the Student Code.

For more information, please see: https://auca.kg/en/code_of_conduct1/

Absences for exams will be excused for extraordinary events if they are accompanied by sufficient documentation within three calendar days of the absence. The instructor reserves the right to determine what constitutes an extraordinary circumstance. The instructor also reserves the right to administer makeup exams of any format, which may not necessarily correspond to the first exam. If a student misses an exam and does not have an excused absence, the student will receive a zero for the exam. Under no circumstances is extra work provided in this course.